DETAILED ACTION

1. This communication is responsive to Amendment C, filed 4/5/04.
2. Claims 1-10 are pending in this application. Claims 1, 3, 4, and 7 are independent claims. In the Amendment C, claim 10 was added, and claims 1, 3, and 7-9 were amended. This action is made Final.
3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

5. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mayhew et al. (“Mayhew”, US 6,239,800 B1).

As per claim 1, Mayhew teaches, in an iconic programming system containing an existing network of connected icons (fig. 6), a computer-implemented method for tracing the execution of icons (abstract), the method comprising the step of:

executing a plurality of the icons via a run of a software program (col. 2, lines 14-22; col. 3, lines 1-30); and highlighting each icon executed in the executing step subsequent to the run of the software program (figs. 6-7; col. 4, lines 46-58; col. 5, lines 2-6).

Mayhew does not explicitly disclose the steps of setting a flag for each icon executed, thereby highlighting each icon being set by its corresponding flag. However, these steps must necessarily be inherent to such a method as Mayhew’s so as to provide the method a means for determining and keeping track of the execution status of each icon by setting a “True” indication to a “True/False” flag that is associated to each executed icon during the executing step; thereby providing the method necessary status information to properly determine and display the highlighting of the plurality of icons.

As per claims 2-3, Mayhew does not explicitly disclose the steps of: performing the setting step during the executing step, receiving an input subsequent to the executing step, and performing the determining step in response to the receiving step. However, these steps, which work in conjunction with the flags, must also be necessarily inherent to Mayhew’s method for the same reasons as provided in the previous paragraph.

As per claim 4, Mayhew teaches, in an iconic programming system, wherein the iconic programming system contains an existing network of connected icons (fig. 6), a computer-implemented method for tracing the execution of icons (abstract), the method comprising the step of:

executing a plurality of the icons (col. 2, lines 14-22); indicating which of the icons are executed in the executing step, determining, subsequent to the executing step and based on the indicating step, that the plurality of icons have been executed, and highlighting the plurality of executed icons in response to the determining step (figs. 6-7; col. 4, lines 46-58; col. 5, lines 2-6).

As per claim 5-6, the method of Mayhew does not explicitly disclose the steps of: setting, during the executing step, a plurality of flags respectively corresponding with the plurality of icons; receiving an input subsequent to the executing step, and performing the determining step in response to the receiving step.

However, these steps must be inherent to such a method as Mayhew's so as to provide the method a means for determining and keeping track of the execution completion status of each icon by setting a "True" indication to a "True/False" flag that is associated to each executed icon during the executing step; thereby providing the method necessary status information to properly determine and display the highlighting of the plurality of icons.

Claims 7-9 are similar in scope to claim 4-6, and therefore are rejected under similar rationale.

As per claim 10, Mayhew teaches the input to be a user input (col. 2, lines 16-17).

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to all independent claims have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues mainly that: it is not disclosed in both Wilson and Mayhew the step of simultaneously highlighting each icon corresponding with each flag set in the setting step subsequent to the run of the software program as recited in claim 1 or similarly in other independent claims.

The Examiner disagrees for the following reasons. By teaching that "During the application program procedure, the presentation of a graphical icon is modified..." (abstract, lines 10-11), and the "icon's presentation is modified to indicate completion of the execution of the associated job" (abstract, lines 14-15), Mayhew indicates that after the run of the software program (application program procedure), and after completion of execution of the jobs, the associated icons' presentation are modified (highlighted). Thus, it is clearly shown that the highlightings are done subsequent to the run of the software program as recited in the claims.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
